A couple reported missing were found murdered this Tuesday in a sugarcane field in the Buenos Aires subdivision of San Andrés Villa Seca, Retalhuleu. Neighbors found the victims' one-year-old daughter alive after hearing her crying in the area.

Authorities identified the victims as Nixon Yovani Pérez Paz, 43, and Glendy Marisol González de la Cruz, 25, both residents of Nueva Lolita, San Andrés Villa Seca. Investigators preliminarily determined that both had gunshot wounds and their hands and feet were bound.

The couple left their home on Monday, heading to Mazatenango, and were last seen in Cuyotenango returning home with their daughter. The motorcycle they were riding has not been located, and the Public Prosecutor's Office is investigating whether the vehicle was stolen after the crime.
